GENDER AND POLITICAL BEHAVIOR IN A COMPARATIVE PERSPECTIVE

Professor: Noémie Piolat, PhD candidate at the Center for European Studies and Comparative Politics (CEE), noemie.piolat@sciencespo.fr

Academic Year 2026/2027: Fall semester

COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course offers a comparative and research-based introduction to the study of gender and politics, with a particular focus on political behavior. It examines how gender shapes political attitudes, voting patterns, participation in institutional politics and social movements, as well as access to political leadership and representation. Drawing on empirical research, the course explores why women and men sometimes differ in their political involvement and preferences, and how gender norms and sexist attitudes influence political behavior and party support. It also addresses feminist debates on the division between public and private spheres and considers how political institutions, parties, media, and public policies both reflect and reproduce gender inequalities. Throughout the course, special attention is paid to intersectionality, highlighting how gender interacts with other social inequalities, and to the normative and political implications of persistent gendered disparities in political participation and power.

The aim of the class is to answer the following question: How does gender shape political participation, attitudes, and access to power in contemporary democracies? To explore this question, the course is structured around a progressive and cumulative logic that moves from broad, structural perspectives to more individual-level mechanisms of political behavior. It begins with a historical examination of women's access to political citizenship, situating gender inequalities within the development of democratic systems. The course then focuses on key political actors and arenas, including political parties and women's participation at the elite level, before turning to patterns of political participation and political efficacy among citizens. Building on this foundation, subsequent sessions analyze gender gaps in political attitudes and voting behavior, with particular attention to support for radical right parties and the role of sexist attitudes as a political mechanism. The course concludes by broadening the analysis through an intersectional lens, highlighting how gender interacts with other social inequalities to shape political behavior and representation. Throughout the course, sessions are linked by a transversal focus on how gendered norms, institutions, and attitudes structure political participation and power.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

By the end of this course, students will be able to:

- Acquire key concepts and analytical frameworks used in the study of gender and politics, with a particular focus on political attitudes, voting behavior, participation, and representation.
- Understand empirical approaches commonly used in gender and politics research, including the analysis of survey data, electoral outcomes, and comparative case studies.
- Develop the ability to read, analyze, and critically assess political science research on gender and politics, including both theoretical and empirical academic texts.
- Identify central research questions and political issues related to gender inequalities and develop structured, evidence-based arguments in response to them.
- Strengthen oral communication and debate skills through active participation in class discussions and collective exercises.
- Engage respectfully with diverse viewpoints and contribute to an inclusive and constructive learning environment.
- Connect course concepts to current political events by following and discussing news related to gender and politics in different national and comparative contexts.

CLASS SESSIONS

Each class session begins with a collective discussion of the compulsory reading, aimed at clarifying key arguments and situating the text within the broader themes of the course. The session then develops the central topics through guided lectures and in-class discussion.

Each session concludes with student presentations, which illustrate one or more of the session's core themes through a concrete empirical case study. Working in small groups, students are responsible for selecting, researching, and presenting a case of their choice, and for explaining its relevance to the session's topic (for example, an election, a political party, a policy debate, or a social movement). Each presentation is followed by a general question-and-answer discussion involving the whole class.

SESSION 1: COURSE OVERVIEW, INTRODUCTION AND ORGANIZATIONAL ISSUES, 07/09/2026

Topic:

- Presentation of the course objectives, structure, assessment methods, and organizational issues (including expectations, evaluation criteria, and the distribution of student presentations)
- Introduction to the concept of gender: distinguishing gender from sex and understanding gender as a social and political category
- Why gender matters in politics: an overview of gender inequalities in political attitudes, participation, voting behavior, and representation
- Introduction to gender gaps in political behavior: empirical patterns and key trends across democracies
- Methodological memo: how to read and interpret quantitative research in political science (basic guidance on tables, figures, variables, and causal claims)

Additional readings:

- Shorrocks, R. (2021). Women, Men, and Elections: Policy Supply and Gendered Voting Behaviour in Western Democracies. Routledge. https://doi.org/10.4324/9780429330926 (first chapter)

SESSION 2: WOMEN'S POLITICAL CITIZENSHIP, 14/09/2026

Topic:

- The historical exclusion of women from political citizenship
- Women's access to the right to vote: timelines and patterns across countries
- Political, social, and ideological arguments in support of and opposition to women's suffrage

- Gender, citizenship, and democracy: what women's enfranchisement reveals about political inclusion
- Introduction to comparative perspectives on women's political rights

Mandatory reading:

Teele, D. L. (2020). Women & the Vote. Daedalus, 149(1), 25–39. https://doi.org/10.1162/daed_a_01771

Additional readings:

- Larson, Elizabeth C. (2021). "Women's Suffrage: Fact Sheet": https://crsreports.congress.gov/product/pdf/R/R45805/7
- Marlow, Joyce (ed.) (2000). Suffragettes. The Fight For Women. London, Virago Pres.

SESSION 3: GENDER AND POLITICAL PARTIES, 21/09/2026

Topic:

- How political parties recruit, select, and promote candidates: gendered patterns and practices
- Gender quotas and affirmative action in party politics: types, implementation, and effectiveness
- Party positions on gender-related issues: policy platforms and internal debates
- Intersection of party ideology and gender representation: how left, right, and radical right parties differ
- The impact of party structures and norms on women's access to leadership and office

Mandatory reading:

Goyal, T. (2025). Local political representation as a pathway to power: A natural experiment in India. American Journal of Political Science, 69(2), 516–530. https://doi.org/10.1111/ajps.12840

Additional readings:

- de Lange, S. L., & Mügge, L. M. (2015). Gender and right-wing populism in the Low Countries: Ideological variations across parties and time. Patterns of Prejudice, 49(1–2), 61–80. https://doi.org/10.1080/0031322X.2015.1014199
- Geva, D. (2024). A new typology of parties of the populist radical right: Fidesz's radicalized conservatism and gender inequality in comparison to the Rassemblement National. https://doi.org/10.1332/25151088Y2024D000000056

- Goyal, Tanushree, and Sells, Cameron (2021). "Women and Party Building: Evidence from Municipal Governments in Brazil." Working Paper. https://doi.org/10.2139/ssrn.3886385.
- Reinhardt, S., Heft, A., & Pavan, E. (2023). Varieties of antigenderism: The politicization of gender issues across three European populist radical right parties. Information, Communication & Society, 0(0), 1–22. https://doi.org/10.1080/1369118X.2023.2246536

SESSION 4: WOMEN'S PARTICIPATION AT THE ELITE LEVEL, 28/09/2026

Topic:

- Descriptive vs. substantive representation: understanding the difference between having women in office and influencing policy outcomes
- Barriers to elite participation: structural, institutional, and cultural obstacles that limit women's access to political leadership
- Political violence and harassment: challenges faced by women in politics, including gendered intimidation, online harassment etc

Mandatory reading:

Castanho Silva, B., Pullan, D., & Wäckerle, J. (2024). Blending in or standing out? Gendered political communication in 24 democracies. American Journal of Political Science.

Additional readings:

- Krook, M. L., & O'Brien, D. Z. (2012). All the president's men? The appointment of female cabinet ministers worldwide. The Journal of Politics, 74(3), 840–855.
- Nater, C., Heilman, M. E., & Sczesny, S. (2023). Footsteps I would like to follow? How gender quotas affect the acceptance of women leaders as role models and inspirations for leadership. European Journal of Social Psychology, 53(1), 129–146.
- Niederle, M., & Vesterlund, L. (2007). Do women shy away from competition? Do men compete too much? The Quarterly Journal of Economics, 122(3), 1067–1101.
- Pitkin, H. F. (1967). Introduction. In The concept of representation (pp. 1–13). University of California Press.

SESSION 5: GENDER GAP IN POLITICAL INTEREST, 05/10/2026

Topic:

- Political efficacy: understanding differences in perceived influence over political processes between men and women
- The role of socialization in shaping political interest, engagement, and confidence

- How differences in political efficacy and interest influence patterns of participation and representation
- Connections to broader gender inequalities in political behavior

Mandatory reading:

Fraile, Marta, and Carolina de Miguel Moyer. 2022. "Risk and the Gender Gap in Internal Political Efficacy in Europe." West European Politics 45(7): 1462–80. doi:10.1080/01402382.2021.1969146.

Additional readings:

- Fraile, Marta, and Irene Sánchez-Vítores. 2019. "Tracing the Gender Gap in Political Interest Over the Life Span: A Panel Analysis." doi:10.13039/501100003329.

- García-Albacete, Gema, and Bryony Hoskins. 2025. "The Gender Gap in Political Efficacy: The Accelerating Effect of Classroom Discussions." Social Forces 103(3): 1167–85. doi:10.1093/sf/soae100.

- Gidengil, Elisabeth, Janine Giles, and Melanee Thomas. 2008. "The Gender Gap in Self-Perceived Understanding of Politics in Canada and the United States." Politics & Gender 4(4): 535–61. doi:10.1017/S1743923X08000469.

- Kestilä-Kekkonen, Elina, Josefina Sipinen, Lauri Rapeli, and Salla Vadén. 2023. "The Role of Political Engagement of Parents in Reducing the Gender Gap in Political Self-Efficacy." European Journal of Politics and Gender: 1–23. doi:10.1332/25151088Y2023D000000005.

SESSION 6: GENDER INEQUALITIES IN POLITICAL PARTICIPATION, 12/10/2026

Topic:

- Gender differences in political participation: turnout, campaigning, protest, and other forms of political engagement

- Trends over time: persistence and change in gender gaps in participation across democracies
- Gendered political socialization and its effects on political interest, efficacy, and engagement
- "Women-friendly" forms of participation: informal, collective, and issue-based political action

Mandatory reading:

Durovic, Anja (2017). "A longitudinal analysis of gendered patterns in political action in France: A generational story?" French Politics, 15 (4), p. 418–442.

Additional readings:

- Bargain, O., Boutin, D., & Champeaux, H. (2019). Women's political participation and intrahousehold empowerment: Evidence from the Egyptian Arab Spring. Journal of Development Economics, 141, 102379. https://doi.org/10.1016/j.jdeveco.2019.102379

- Coffé, H., & Bolzendahl, C. (2010). Same Game, Different Rules? Gender Differences in Political Participation. Sex Roles, 62(5), 318–333. https://doi.org/10.1007/s11199-009-9729-y

- Dassonneville, R., & Kostelka, F. (2021). The Cultural Sources of the Gender Gap in Voter Turnout. British Journal of Political Science, 51(3), 1040–1061. https://doi.org/10.1017/S0007123419000644

- Gidengil, E., O'Neill, B., & Young, L. (2010). Her Mother's Daughter? The Influence of Childhood Socialization on Women's Political Engagement. Journal of Women, Politics & Policy, 31(4), 334–355. https://doi.org/10.1080/1554477X.2010.533590

- Hooghe, M., & Stolle, D. (2004). Good Girls Go to the Polling Booth, Bad Boys Go Everywhere: Gender Differences in Anticipated Political Participation Among American Fourteen-Year-Olds. Women & Politics, 26(3–4), 1–23. https://doi.org/10.1300/J014v26n03_01

SESSION 7: PRESENTATIONS AND DISCUSSIONS FOR FINAL PAPERS, 19/10/2026

No mandatory reading, collective discussion for the final papers.

SESSION 8: GENDER GAPS IN ATTITUDES AND IN VOTING BEHAVIOR, 02/11/2026

Topic:

- Historical perspective: the emergence of gender gaps in political attitudes and voting behavior
- The contemporary gender gap: patterns in electoral preferences, party support, and political priorities

- Gender differences in political attitudes, including issue positions, policy preferences, and ideological orientations
- Explanations for gender gaps: socialization, structural factors, gender norms, and contextual influences

Mandatory reading:

Giger, Nathalie (2009). "Towards a modern gender gap in Europe? A comparative analysis of voting behavior in 12 countries", The Social Science Journal 46 (3), p. 474-492

Additional readings:

- Dassonneville, R. (2021). Change and continuity in the ideological gender gap a longitudinal analysis of left-right self-placement in OECD countries. European Journal of Political Research, 60(1), 225–238. https://doi.org/10.1111/1475-6765.12384
- Dassonneville, R., & Kostelka, F. (2021). The Cultural Sources of the Gender Gap in Voter Turnout. British Journal of Political Science, 51(3), 1040–1061. https://doi.org/10.1017/S0007123419000644
- Grasso, M., & Shorrocks, R. (n.d.). Are new generations of women more left-wing than men? Generations and gender gaps in attitudes to inequality and social services. Journal of European Public Policy, 0(0), 1–28. https://doi.org/10.1080/13501763.2025.2490811
- Howell, S. E., & Day, C. L. (2000). Complexities of the Gender Gap. Journal of Politics, 62(3), 858–874. https://doi.org/10.1111/0022-3816.00036
- Langsæther, P. E., & Knutsen, C. H. (2024). Are women more progressive than men? Attitudinal gender gaps in West European democracies. International Political Science Review, 01925121241280069. https://doi.org/10.1177/01925121241280069
- Van Ditmars, M. M. (2023). Political socialization, political gender gaps and the intergenerational transmission of left-right ideology. European Journal of Political Research, 62(1), 3–24. https://doi.org/10.1111/1475-6765.12517

SESSION 9: THE RADICAL RIGHT GENDER GAP, 09/11/2026

Topic:

- Understanding the gender gap in support for radical right parties: empirical patterns across countries
- Explanations for the radical right gender gap: sexism, cultural backlash, economic insecurity, and party ideology
- Exceptions and evolving trends: when and where women support radical right parties
- Contemporary concepts and debates: femonationalism, homonationalism, and the intersection of gender, nationalism, and radical right politics

Mandatory reading:

Donovan, T. (2022). Measuring and predicting the radical-right gender gap. West European Politics, 46(1), 255–264. https://doi.org/10.1080/01402382.2022.2034091

Additional readings:

- Blinder, S., Ford, R., & Ivarsflaten, E. (2013). The Better Angels of Our Nature: How the Antiprejudice Norm Affects Policy and Party Preferences in Great Britain and Germany. American Journal of Political Science, 57(4), 841–857. https://doi.org/10.1111/ajps.12030
- Durovic, A., Mayer, N., & Piolat, N. (2025). How gender and attitudes towards gender and sexuality shaped votes in the 2024 European Parliament elections in France. Revue Européenne Des Sciences Sociales. European Journal of Social Sciences, 63–2, 71–97. https://doi.org/10.4000/1596h
- Harteveld, E., & Ivarsflaten, E. (2018). Why Women Avoid the Radical Right: Internalized Norms and Party Reputations. British Journal of Political Science, 48(2), 369–384. https://doi.org/10.1017/S0007123415000745
- Mayer, N. (2015). The closing of the radical right gender gap in France? French Politics, 13(4), 391–414. https://doi.org/10.1057/fp.2015.18
- Mehring, K., Off, G., & Wojnicka, K. (2025). The populist radical right, the gender gap and protective masculinity across European countries. https://doi.org/10.1332/25151088Y2025D000000101
- Milosav, Đ., Dickson, Z., Hobolt, S. B., Klüver, H., Kuhn, T., & Rodon, T. (2025). The youth gender gap in support for the far right. Journal of European Public Policy, 0(0), 1–25. https://doi.org/10.1080/13501763.2025.2481181
- Oshri, O., Harsgor, L., Itzkovitch-Malka, R., & Tuttnauer, O. (2023). Risk Aversion and the Gender Gap in the Vote for Populist Radical Right Parties. American Journal of Political Science, 67(3), 701–717. https://doi.org/10.1111/ajps.12696
- Reyes-Housholder, C., Kaltwasser, C. R., & Salas-Lewin, R. (2025). Antifeminism and backlash politics. European Journal of Politics and Gender, 1(aop), 1–26. https://doi.org/10.1332/25151088Y2025D000000114
- Spierings, N., & Zaslove, A. (2017). Gender, populist attitudes, and voting: Explaining the gender gap in voting for populist radical right and populist radical left parties. West European Politics, 40(4), 821–847. https://doi.org/10.1080/01402382.2017.1287448

SESSION 10: SEXIST ATTITUDES AND THEIR POLITICAL IMPLICATIONS, 16/11/2026

Topic:

- Understanding gender backlash and its manifestations in politics
- Typologies of sexism: hostile vs. benevolent sexism, traditional vs. modern sexism, and other frameworks

- The relationship between sexist attitudes and support for radical right parties
- Age and generational dimensions: how sexist attitudes among youth shape political behavior and party support

Mandatory reading:

Anduiza, E., & Rico, G. (2022). Sexism and the Far-Right Vote: The Individual Dynamics of Gender Backlash. American Journal of Political Science, 0(0), 1–16. https://doi.org/10.1111/ajps.12759

Additional readings:

- Anduiza, E., & Rico, G. (2025). Sexism and the Gender Gap in Support for the Radical Right. Journal of Women, Politics & Policy, 0(0), 1–11. https://doi.org/10.1080/1554477X.2025.2552577
- Cassese, E. C., & Barnes, T. D. (2019). Reconciling Sexism and Women's Support for Republican Candidates: A Look at Gender, Class, and Whiteness in the 2012 and 2016 Presidential Races. Political Behavior, 41(3), 677–700. https://doi.org/10.1007/s11109-018-9468-2
- Christley, O. R. (2022). Traditional Gender Attitudes, Nativism, and Support for the Radical Right. Politics & Gender, 18(4), 1141–1167. https://doi.org/10.1017/S1743923X21000374
- Dotti Sani, G. M., & Quaranta, M. (2017). The Best Is Yet to Come? Attitudes Toward Gender Roles Among Adolescents in 36 Countries. Sex Roles, 77(1), 30–45. https://doi.org/10.1007/s11199-016-0698-7
- Off, G., Charron, N., & Alexander, A. (2022). Who perceives women's rights as threatening to men and boys? Explaining modern sexism among young men in Europe. Frontiers in Political Science, 4.
- Reyes-Housholder, C., Kaltwasser, C. R., & Salas-Lewin, R. (2025). Antifeminism and backlash politics. European Journal of Politics and Gender, 1(aop), 1–26. https://doi.org/10.1332/25151088Y2025D000000114

SESSION 11: INTERSECTIONALITY, 23/11/2026

Topic:

- What is intersectionality? Origins, key concepts, and theoretical foundations
- How gender interacts with other social categories such as race, ethnicity, class, age, and sexuality in shaping political behavior and access to power
- Examples of intersecting inequalities in political participation, representation, and policy outcomes
- Methodological implications: challenges and strategies for studying intersectionality empirically

Mandatory reading:

Crenshaw, K. W. (2006). Intersectionality, Identity Politics and Violence Against Women of Color. Women, Gender & Research, 2–3.

Additional readings:

- Farris, Emily M. and Mirya R. Holman (2014). "Social capital and solving the puzzle of Black women's political participation" Politics, Groups, and Identities 2(3), p.331-349.
- Holman, Mirya R. and Monica C. Schneider (2016). "Gender, race, and political ambition: how intersectionality and frames influence interest in political office", Politics, Groups, and Identities 6(2), p. 264-280.
- hooks, b. (1984). Black Women: Shaping Feminist Theory. In Feminist theory: From margin to center (pp. 1–14). South End Press.
- Nadia E. Brown (2014). "Political Participation of Women of Colour: An Intersectional Analysis." Journal of Women, Politics & Policy 35(4): 315-348.

SESSION 12: CONCLUSION, FUTURE OF THE STUDY OF GENDER AND POLITICS, 30/11/2026

Topic:

- Emerging forms of political participation: online activism, digital campaigns, and social media engagement
- Contemporary challenges in gendered political behavior: masculinism, incels, and the manosphere
- Methodological considerations: measuring gender, gender attitudes, and political behavior in empirical research
- Synthesis and reflections: key lessons from the course, implications for research and practice, and directions for future study

Mandatory reading:

Bittner, A., & Goodyear-Grant, E. (2017). Sex isn't Gender: Reforming Concepts and Measurements in the Study of Public Opinion. Political Behavior, 39(4), 1019–1041. https://doi.org/10.1007/s11109-017-9391-y

Additional readings:

- Botto, M., & Gottzén, L. (2024). Swallowing and spitting out the red pill: Young men, vulnerability, and radicalization pathways in the manosphere. Journal of Gender Studies, 33(5), 596–608. https://doi.org/10.1080/09589236.2023.2260318
- Dignam, P. A., & Rohlinger, D. A. (2019). Misogynistic Men Online: How the Red Pill Helped Elect Trump. Signs: Journal of Women in Culture and Society, 44(3), 589–612. https://doi.org/10.1086/701155

- Inguanzo, I., Zhang, B., & Gil de Zúñiga, H. (2021). Online cultural backlash? Sexism and political user-generated content. Information, Communication & Society, 24(14), 2133–2152. https://doi.org/10.1080/1369118X.2021.1962940
- Peña-Fernandez, S., Larrondo-Ureta, A., & Morales-i-Gras, J. (2023). Feminism, Gender Identity and Polarization in TikTok and Twitter. Comunicar: Media Education Research Journal, 31(75), 47–58.
- Regehr, K. (2022). In(cel)doctrination: How technologically facilitated misogyny moves violence off screens and on to streets. New Media & Society, 24(1), 138–155. https://doi.org/10.1177/1461444820959019
- Vasilescu, B., Capiluppi, A., & Serebrenik, A. (2014). Gender, Representation and Online Participation: A Quantitative Study. Interacting with Computers, 26(5), 488–511. https://doi.org/10.1093/iwc/iwt047
- Westbrook, Laurel and Alina Saperstein (2015). "New categories are not enough: Rethinking the measurement of sex and gender in social surveys", Gender & Society 29(4), p. 534–560.

COURSE VALIDATION

Student evaluation is based on four components designed to progressively develop analytical and research skills:

Group case study presentation (25%)

Students will work in small groups to present a case study related to one of the course sessions (e.g. an election, political party, policy, social movement, or media campaign). Presentations should clearly link the case to the session's key concepts and debates.

Each group must obtain approval for their case study topic by email. Groups are required to email the instructor at least six days before the presentation (i.e. by Tuesday of the week preceding the presentation) with a short description of their chosen case study. Each group must prepare a presentation outline (including structure and references). This outline must be emailed to the instructor and shared with the class no later than 10:00 a.m. on the day of the presentation.

Progress Report (15%)

Students will submit a short note (approximately 1,000 words) presenting the early stage of their final paper project. The objective of this assignment is to help students clarify what they want to study and why, before developing a full research design in the final paper. This assignment will be discussed collectively during Session 7.

The note should include the following elements:

- Topic and empirical focus: A clear presentation of the topic chosen for the final paper and the political or empirical context it relates to (e.g. a country, election, party, policy area, social group, or time period).

- Research puzzle: A discussion of the research puzzle motivating the project. Students should explain what is surprising, contested, or insufficiently understood about their topic, based on course discussions and initial readings.

- Research question: A clearly formulated and focused research question related to gender and politics. The question should be specific, researchable, and connected to existing debates in the literature.

No literature review, data collection, or methodological design is required at this stage. The emphasis is on problem formulation, not on how the research will be conducted.

Students are encouraged to use this assignment as a foundation for the final paper, which will further develop the literature review and research design.

Final paper (50%)

The final paper (approximately 4,000 words) takes the form of a short research paper structured as a research proposal or pre-analysis plan. Students are expected to formulate a clear and focused research question related to gender and politics and to demonstrate how this question could be answered using existing academic research and an appropriate empirical strategy.

No original data collection or statistical analysis is required. Instead, the emphasis is on demonstrating an understanding of how political science research is designed and how empirical evidence can be used to answer a research question.

The paper should include the following elements:

- A clearly stated research question and a brief discussion of its relevance to debates in gender and politics.
- A review and discussion of the relevant academic literature (minimum of 10 scholarly sources), identifying key arguments, findings, and gaps related to the research question.
- A proposed research design explaining how the research question could be empirically addressed. This may include the choice of case(s), data sources (e.g. surveys, electoral data, media content, party documents, interviews...), variables or concepts of interest, and the overall analytical strategy.
- A brief discussion of potential limitations, challenges, or ethical considerations related to the proposed research.

The objective of the final paper is not to produce original empirical results, but to show that students can engage critically with academic literature, formulate a researchable question, and think systematically about how to design a political science study on gender and politics.

Student engagement and participation (10%)

Active participation throughout the semester is expected, including preparation of readings, contributions to class discussions, respectful engagement with others' perspectives, and attention to current events related to gender and politics.

COMPLETE BIBLIOGRAPHY

- Bayes, J. (Ed.). (2012). Gender and Politics (1st ed.). Verlag Barbara Budrich. https://doi.org/10.3224/86649104
- Inglehart, R., & Norris, P. (2003). Rising Tide: Gender Equality and Cultural Change Around the World. Cambridge University Press. https://doi.org/10.1017/CBO9780511550362
- Krook, M. L., & Childs, S. (2010). Women, Gender, and Politics: A Reader. Oxford University Press.
- Lovenduski, J., & Norris, P. (1993). Gender and Party Politics. SAGE Publications.
- Shorrocks, R. (2021). Women, Men, and Elections: Policy Supply and Gendered Voting Behaviour in Western Democracies. Routledge. https://doi.org/10.4324/9780429330926
- Waylen Georgina, Celis Karen, Kantola Johanna, & Weldon S Laurel. (2013). The Oxford handbook of gender and politics. Oxford University Press.

DISABILITY ACCOMMODATIONS

To benefit from Disability Accommodations and obtain an accommodation letter, please contact Sciences Po's Disability Services promptly at pole.handicap@sciencespo.fr. Accommodations are not retroactive. If you wish to receive accommodations in this class, you will need to provide me with the accommodation letter from Sciences Po's Disability Services. We will then discuss specifically how to meet your needs. Letters received with too short notice prior to an assessment do not guarantee you access to your accommodations.

ABSENCES

Attendance is mandatory and it is taken on a factual basis, in accordance with Science Po's Academic Rules and Regulations. If you are absent, you should inform me, but professors do not excuse absences. All absences, including those at rescheduled sessions, need to be justified with your academic office within 5 days of your absence with a medical note or equivalent official document from the date of your absence (backdated documents cannot be accepted). Extracurricular activities (work, conferences, internships, interviews, family celebrations, travel etc.) are not considered valid reasons to miss a session.

Students are required to be available for rescheduled sessions and assessments throughout the semester and until the last official day of the semester.

ACADEMIC INTEGRITY

It is vital that all the oral and written work you hand in and complete in class be your own and produced for this course only. Cheating and plagiarism are serious offenses that will not be tolerated. If you have any questions or concerns about what cheating and plagiarism comprise, recheck the online Academic Integrity Module, all documents related to Academic Integrity provided by Sciences Po and in particular, the Academic Integrity Charter. Please see me as well if you need to clarify how it applies to this course and our assignments.

All written work needs to be submitted via Moodle. The use of Artificial Intelligence is not allowed in this class.

Use Harvard author date biographical Style for all assessments.